Alberta Shows Financial Gain

New Executive of Western Canada Produce Association

Despite additional payments on road construction and the debt reorganization plan, increased revenues placed the province in a materially improved financial position at the end of December compared with the same time in the previous fiscal year, it was announced Wednesday.

Details of the province's financial standing were contained in an interim financial statement released Wednesday by C. K. H. Huiskens, provincial auditor.

Overall cash surplus of the province at Dec. 31 was $958,000, more than $2,000,000 less than the $4,958,000 cash surplus at the end of the same nine-month period the previous year.

However, a straight comparison of the cash position does not reveal the true financial picture, it was stated. Included in the previous year's surplus was a $2,027,675 federal payment, which was not balanced by the corresponding $2,008,985 federal payment due in this period. This amount was received earlier in the fiscal year and was included in revenues for the fiscal year ending last March.

During the nine months ending Dec. 31, $1,650,000 in payments were made for the redemption of Alberta debentures, issued under the debt reorganization program and $125,000 as a sinking fund contribution. No comparative payments were made during the corresponding period of the previous years.

Total cost of the debt reorganization program during the nine months reached $2,336,477.

Receipts during the period were $2,960,044, an increase of $2,396,497 over the $2,660,047 during the same period of the previous year.

Payments were $2,501,344, an increase of $1,222,222 over the $1,279,122 of the corresponding period.

A total of $2,501,344 was paid out for the province on road and bridge construction during the nine months. This was $2,186,167 more than the

Britain May Recall Wavell, Prepare to Evacuate India

LONDON, (Reuters)—According to strong rumors in informed quarters, Admiral Viscount Mountbatten, cousin of His Majesty the king, is to succeed Viscount Wavell as viceroy of India.

Viscount Wavell is to be replaced by a British officer.

Speculation arose that Britain might be preparing to evacuate India and to announce a complete evacuation, perhaps within a year.

One informant said British evacuation "within a stated period" was not out of the question.

The cabinet's decision to bring Wavell down, these informants said, came as a result of the new constitution crisis in India.

It was said that the cabinet decided to bring Wavell down because he was not a British officer.

The latest Indian crisis has followed Mountbatten's refusal to participate in the constitution crisis.

Assembly British officials said the crisis was the latest of a series of crises in the viceroy's term of office.

It was said that the viceroy's term of office was to be extended for a year.

Talk 'Government' For West Germany

WIESBADEN, (AP)—The eight German states of the American and British zones are seeking to form a quasi-government with Germany, it was indicated Wednesday.

The proposed organization, American observers believed, could be a central German government of the zone if the Russians fail to agree to a central German government at the Moscow foreign ministers conference.

The states' ministers' meeting, which was a bi-weekly "policy" conference, was held in Wiesbaden. One participant said that the German government was not in the United States and British zones.

Question Disposal Of Enemy Property

To 1920. At one time, property coming under the official disposal of the government was totalling far more than one billion dollars. Today, according to Secretary of State Clegg, that has dwindled to $350,000,000.

Activities of the custodian have ranged from enemy patents and enemy-owned shares in Canadian companies, to the operation of an enemy-owned circus in the Maritimes.

Pays Own Way

Members of the opposition want to know a lot more about the custodian's activities. Only one provision of the whole set-up is that the department is self-sustaining, with the deputy custodian (the secretary of state is the custodian) paying his own salary out of the proceeds of the business he operates in the name of the government.

Parliament does not know how much profit the custodian makes, or what becomes of the money, because none ever shows up in the consolidated revenue fund.

For instance, when the property of the Ukrainian Nationalist Party association was seized and sold as enemy property, it sold at $100,000. Later, when the organization was again required, restitution had to be made. Restitution was paid out of the earnings of the custodian's office.

C.P. Leader Caldwell went to know about the tie-up between the Bayer company in Canada and Germany's I. O. Farben, and the three gas organizations. What about the royalties normally payable to I. O. Farben and to Rhoda and some of the Bayer staff, when Hitler was in charge?

These royalties, Mr. Gibson explained, also went to the custodian.

Undecided on Patents

He did not know exactly what would be the future of enemy patents, as the whole matter was now being considered by an international conference. They would likely be sold, or the rights would be licensed back.

Mr. Gibson admitted he could think of no reason why parliament should not have the details of the custodian's office.

The custodian has power to record any claim made by a Canadian for loss or damage to Canadian property in enemy-held territory. These total far more than the enemy assets he controls.

By H. R. Hardy

OTTAWA.—There was difference of opinion among opposition and government members as to the fate of controls.

Trade Minister Mackinnon, moving the second reading of a bill to amend export and import permits regulations, said it was the government's firm intention to free as many items from control as possible, as soon as possible.

Mr. Mackinnon said the Canadian price level in many commodities is still substantially below the world price. In the absence of export control, Canada would quickly become denuded of many essential goods.

Ask Farm Policies

Progressive Conservative leader Bracken, took occasion during consideration of a resolution to amend the Canadian Wheat Board act, to ask for information on a wide variety of agricultural matters.

He wanted to know:

1. What the government's coarse grain policy will be.

2. If the government expects to increase coarse grain supplies to help fill the British contract for bacon and other supplies.

3. What the government intends to do about quotas and sustained acreage.

4. What the government's policy is on participation certificates.

5. Where the farmer stood on the government's price control.

6. What the government's policy was on the embargo on the export of major agricultural products to the United States.

Urges Coarse Grain Plan

Mr. Bracken also had a few suggestions. He wanted the bill referred to the agricultural and colonization committee. He suggested the government's wheat policy by itself meant little unless it was accompanied by a barley and oats policy.

Mr. Mackinnon said the bill would provide the government and the Canadian wheat board with more powers than provided by the present act. The general purposes are:

1. To authorize the regulation by the wheat board of the interprovincial and export trade in wheat.

2. To meet requirements of the wheat contract with the United Kingdom.

3. To make a corresponding adjustment in the pool price in relation to the wheat contract with the United Kingdom.

4. To permit the board to deal in grain other than wheat.

Ottawa May Help In Blind Research

OTTAWA, (CP)—The federal government may take a hand in helping the provincial governments test the feasibility of medical treatment for restoring or improving the sight of Canada's blind pensioners.

The civil service commission has announced a Dominion-wide competition for accredited ophthalmologists (specialists on diseases of the eye), the winner of which will serve as technical consultant in the division of blindness control, health and welfare department.

In effect the ophthalmologist appointed will act as a "chain officer" between the provinces and the federal government, said a welfare department official. He will study the affairs of the blind, contact research and make surveys to learn how many might have their sight partially or entirely restored.

Chocolate Bars To Be Smaller

OTTAWA, (CP)—The government announced Tuesday night extension of minimum net weights on candy to include all six-cent bars and small packages of hard candy in a uniform weight scale.

Bureau officials said the few manufacturers who were still trying to produce bars at heavier weight per pound would be unable to do so because of mounting costs.

Police Bar 1,000 From Legislature

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—New York state police acting on orders of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's Republican administration Tuesday barred 1,000 demonstrators from New York legislative halls and a loud and long political wrangle ensued.

In fast-breaking action, minority Democratic lawmakers closed a "strike" and declined to participate in law-making which they asserted was illegal because the doors of their chambers were closed to the public.

Republican leaders, accusing the leaders of the March on Albany of being "Reds," defended the action and proceeded over Democratic protests to approve Dewey's record $871,000,000 budget for 1947.

Marshall Rejects Russian Protest

WASHINGTON, (AP)—State Secretary Marshall rejected Tuesday a Russian protest that Under-Secretary Dean Acheson had made remarks "rude, slanderous and insulting" to the Soviet Union.

Marshall's reply, delivered to Foreign Minister Molotov in Moscow, defended Acheson as having spoken "in line of duty" in telling the senate about committee that Russia's foreign policy is "aggressive and expanding."

Notwithstanding, Marshall said, but was in response to specific questions by a member of the senate regarding Russia's territorial ambitions and how they might be developed by possession of atomic bomb secrets.

"It is an overstatement to say that the constitutional system of this nation," Marshall told Molotov, "involving the separation of powers between the legislative and executive branches of this government."

"In accordance with our system, an officer of the executive branch, called before a committee of the legislative branch, is under a duty to answer frankly relevant questions not involving a matter of secrecy or disclosure with the public interest."

"The conduct of the under-secretary therefore, in answering the question frankly and in accordance with his conscience cannot be described as inadmissible, but was rather in line of duty."

Alleged Communist Cited for Contempt

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The house of representatives Tuesday cited Communist leader for contempt after hearing him described as the "number one Communist authority in the United States" and "one of the most dangerous men ever to set foot on American soil."

Elder refused Feb. 8 to swear to tell the house un-American activities committee the truth without making a preliminary statement first. Now it is up to the district attorney to lay the case before a grand jury with a request for an indictment, if he thinks the step warranted.

May Mine Potash In Saskatchewan

Deposits of the mineral, used as fertilizer and in explosives manufacture, have been discovered at several points in western Saskatchewan.

Robert Barrowman Dies in Lethbridge

LETHBRIDGE, (CP)—Robert Barrowman, 66, former mayor of Lethbridge, died here Tuesday after a lengthy illness. Death was due to a heart attack.

A native of Scotland, he came to Canada in 1907, and to Lethbridge in 1915, where he established a sign painting business. He held his business interests in the City of Lethbridge, Ltd. of Calgary, in 1943. After a short period of retirement he entered the real estate business.

He was elected president of the Lethbridge Liberal association and served in that capacity in 1933. He was twice Liberal candidate for Lethbridge in Alberta elections but met defeat on each occasion.

Priority to Help Move Newsprint

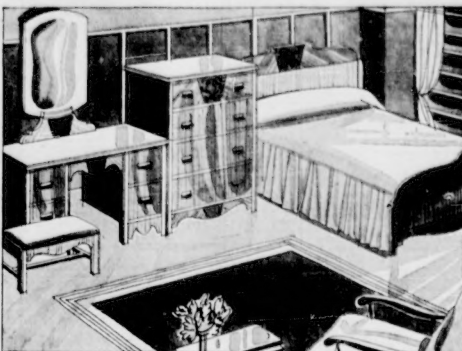

OTTAWA, (CP)—Transport Controller B. S. Libery said Tuesday he has issued a priority order to Canadian railroads instructing them to make available to newsprint plants sufficient freight cars to keep them in operation.

The order, issued in discussions between the controller and members of the newsprint industry, at which it was shown that many newsprint plants have faced severe newsprint plant in close news and threatened other with the necessity of similar orders will be issued when it has been determined that specific industries are in danger of closing down unless freight cars are provided, Mr. Libery said.

To Make Oxygen • $250,000 Plant For Edmonton

Officials of Canadian Liquid Air Company Ltd. announced Wednesday that a factory costing $250,000 would be erected in Edmonton for the manufacture of oxygen and acetylene gases. The plant will be located at the northeast corner of 107th avenue between Clarke stadium and the CNR tracks.

Work on the construction of the plant will start as soon as manpower and materials are available. The property on which the structure will be located is being purchased from the city.

The company at present operates gas producing plants throughout the Dominion, extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Five of these plants were constructed during the war period, and the remainder have been erected since the war's termination.

Prior to the war, the question of a plant for Edmonton was under consideration but the consumption of oxygen and acetylene was too low to warrant erection at that time.

During the war period, and subsequent to the termination of hostilities, the demand for these gases increased tremendously, and, coupled with the company's expansion in the industrial expansion of Canada's northern resources, has resulted in the decision to erect a plant here.

The new plant will not only produce oxygen and acetylene, but will also have a completely equipped sales store for supplying gas, and cutting equipment, electrodes for arc welding, and all supplies.

Plan Distribution Of Films in City

Educational films for use in Alberta schools and film-projectors will be distributed in Edmonton in future by General Films Co. Ltd., which has opened offices at 10602 102nd street. It was announced Wednesday by Ken Melton, branch manager.

The company, which has head office in Regina, is an all-Canadian distributing firm. Most of the educational films will be Canadian-produced although some will be 16 mm films produced in Hollywood.

Chief Magistrate Speaks On Social Security No Old Age Pension in Canada, Says Mayor —“You Have to Be Broke to Get It”

At present-day wage levels, workers find it impossible to provide for their families and at the same time save for their old age, Mayor Harry Ainlay declared Monday night in an address before a meeting of the Social Security League of Canada at the Edmonton branch, held in the 103 street IOOF hall.

“WE REALLY HAVE to old age pension in Canada — you have to be broke to get it — and what you get is indignant relief,” the mayor charged. “I don’t anyone in the present day who has a family on whom to depend for old age... money to provide for old age... old persons should have a chance to retire on pension and leave the job for younger men.”

He pointed out that in Sweden the retiring age is 68 years, and at a pension of $100 a year is the equivalent of Canadian money. Every one should be able to retire at the age of 60, said the mayor, adding this would be an opportunity for the recipient to take some enjoyment of the remainder of his or her term.

The federal income tax act, it was emphasized, had provisions which allow a man with a family on whom to depend for old age... persons and $1,000 for married couples — tax free.

By this means the Dominion government acknowledged a need of which an able-bodied man, who is not a good business.”

The meeting passed a resolution that the city should have a study of the problem of old age pension, and the chairman of the committee, Mr. J. H. Wright, president of the Social Security League, said he would report on the matter at the next meeting.

MRS. EDITH ROBERTS, branch president, was chairman of the evening.

ON SUNDAY, J. M. Hope, 12717 126 street, said his auto was parked across the street from his residence. The following day he noticed that an attempt to force his door had been made. The two blades from the windshield wipers were stolen along with three reflectors.

A parcel stolen from a Canadian Pacific Express truck while it was parked in a lane between 101 and 104 street, was recovered behind a box car where the vehicle was parked. The parcel contained children's educational records and was addressed to the city.

In Nagasaki When Atom Bomb Dropped, Naval Officer Lives On to Tell the Tale

Hurled more than 40 feet and thrown flat on his face when history's second atom bomb soared into vapor the Japanese city of Nagasaki, Douglas G. Grant, prisoner-of-war for more than three years, not only lived to tell the tale but is in sufficiently good health that he is going to join the police force at Victoria.

GRANT, NOW AGED 34, joined the Royal Navy at Chatham, Eng., in 1935. While quickly in the ranks he became a chief petty officer and was posted to the Exeter, one of the British cruisers which made battle history when it dogged the heels of Germany's pocket battleship Graf Spee and ran it wounded from shelter, to sink in a naval port in Uruguay.

The Exeter later was sunk in the Java Sea. It was then Grant was taken prisoner by the Japanese along with the survivors of the Exeter crew.

Interviewed here Monday at the CNR station just before he boarded the train for the island city, Grant in a story that spoke of stark horror, related many of the details of the earth-shaking explosion.

“WE HAD NO IDEA that there was an air raid. The sky was clear and the one who carried the atom bomb was high in the air,” he recalled. “Suddenly a terrific force of hot wind swept me off my feet and threw me flat on my face about 40 feet away from where I was standing.”

“I was conscious of a terrific flash which seemed to extend from horizon to horizon, and a roar that muffled thunder, and for some time. Fires were everywhere throughout the ruined and smoking city,” he recalled.

At the time of explosion, Grant was being used with other prisoners as a forced dockyard labor.

The building near which I was working had open sides, which was lucky for me since “a blast carried me right through it to the other side,” said Grant.

JAPANESE MILITARY guards, and other officials who survived the split-second blast were thrown into confusion, said Grant, adding the only thing he doubts at all that the atom bomb which fell on Hiroshima and Nagasaki brought the Japanese military machine to an abrupt collapse.

Shortly after capitulation of the enemy, Grant, along with the rest of the war prisoners were moved to England where all personnel were given repeated examinations to determine if there was any injury from the deadly gamma rays which continued to emanate from the scene of the atom blast.

EXCEPT FOR A LOSS of weight, which was attributed to prison diet and heavy labor, Grant came through the experience with nothing more than the right of memory, which he says will be permanent with him throughout his life.

A native of Motherwell, Scotland, Grant hopes to be able to make a home at Victoria.

Responsibilities are Cited New Importance of Science, Engineering Noted By Speaker

Science and engineering are evolving to a position of greater and greater importance and the engineer and the technologist must accept their new social responsibilities, since their first duty is to their fellow man, Dr. C. H. Wright, president of the Canadian Institute of the Institute in the Macdonald hotel Tuesday.

DR. WRIGHT was speaking on the subject: “The Institute and the Engineer in a World of Science and Engineering.”

The speaker said the importance of science and engineering in the discovery of scientific truths has given great power in the modern world to the engineer and the technologist. He pointed out that the engineer and the technologist must accept their new social responsibilities, since their first duty is to their fellow man.

In this way the scientist and the engineer can give to the world a better world in which the great scientific and engineering achievements of the past can be put to use for the benefit of all.

DR. WRIGHT traced the rapid change in attitude toward science and engineering in the last 100 years. A few years ago the scientific research man was the “mad scientist” who lived in a tower and was feared by the public.

Dr. Wright said he hoped that the thousands of graduating university men will consider all factors before making a decision to go into science and engineering in other countries.

This situation should receive the careful consideration of government, industry, and management.

HE MENTIONED that 35,000 references were taken from the scientific literature in Canada from 1930 to 1940. It was to be hoped that adequate salaries will be paid these men, the cream of our universities.

He also mentioned the dangers of professional societies should also give aid to the problem of maintaining a high standard of living.

Good research and good engineering are essential to the progress of the nation. It is the responsibility of the engineer and the technologist to see that the scientific and engineering achievements of the past are put to use for the benefit of all.

DR. WRIGHT devoted the first part of his talk to a history of the Chemical Institute in Canada from its early beginning in Toronto in 1902 to its present status as a national organization.

He also described the dangers facing civilization through the utilization of atomic energy.

Dr. Wright was chairman of the evening.

$7,759,481 for 9 Months Liquor Profits Hit New High

Alberta Liquor Control Board profits reached a new high for the nine-month period ending Dec. 31, 1946, according to the interim financial statement issued Wednesday by Premier Ernest Manning, provincial.

Of the $7,759,481 profits earned by the board for that period, seven million dollars have been turned over to the general revenue fund of the province.

For the same period a year ago, the board reported a profit of $6,250,000. The increase is due to the rise in the price of liquor, which was set at a new high in 1946.

Possessiveness Brings Unhappiness

The most common fault of women and the one that brings upon them their greatest suffering is possessiveness. They never come back again, but by nature and they want sole possession of whatever is their heart's desire. And this goes for material things as well as spiritual. In fact, for instance, why so few women can live together in the same house without getting in each other's hair unless one of them is a congenial domestic. The common, or garden, variety of woman regards her home as belonging exclusively to her. She broods and broods and even betide any other woman who even ventures a suggestion about what color the new draperies should be, or how many eggs should be used in making a cup cake.

EVERY COOK always speaks of the kitchen as MY kitchen, and even for Grandma to step into it is as dangerous as it would be for her to invade the enemy's country. And the reason most mothers are anxious to get their daughters married off is because they want to be able to run their house without any interference from upstairs youngsters.

It is wives' possessiveness that wrecks more marriages than all the pillaging of all the Don Juans put together. For so many women are not content to just have their husbands love them and be kind to them and to be freest sitters, they demand that they be all-wise, their husbands, so that they have no other friends or interests, and they get so green-eyed over their husbands' affection for their mothers as they would over their own, having affairs with glamorous girls.

PRACTICALLY the first thing that most young wives do is to break up their husbands' friendships with all of their old set. It doesn't matter if they are women old enough to be their husbands' mothers, or women who have been married for years, if they are not content to let their husbands have their own friends, they will need a friend, or if they are the wife with whom they grew up and between whom there is a Damon and Pythian love, the bride gives them such a cold welcome that they never come back again. She just can't share her possession with another.

And all of this is the trouble. That's mostly due to mother's possessiveness. Mother simply can't bear to share her son's love with another woman, although she really knows that the love of a man for his wife and the love he has for his mother do not conflict with each other in any way, shape, or form. In fact, she is just as possessive as his mother is, and she is more jealous of her than she would be of any man. And so we have the curious and tragic spectacle of the two women who should do the most to make a man happy, delighting over him and tearing his very soul into tatters.

And it's mother's belief that the possessive woman is that she never knows that in her determination to monopolize every body and everything she wants she loses out. For we get happiness out of what we share with others.

And the ironic thing about the possessive woman is that she never knows that in her determination to monopolize every body and everything she wants she loses out. For we get happiness out of what we share with others.

POETRY—I

This and the following articles are taken from the Book of Knowledge and can be clipped for saving in a reference book.

POETRY, MORE PRECIOUS THAN GOLD

It is a splendid thing to say something the world will never forget. That has been done often by great men and women who have written fine thoughts in words as beautiful as the books in which they are found will never die.

Many of these thoughts that cannot be forgotten are in poetry, for poetry is for easier to remember than the ordinary reading called prose. There are thousands of poems that everybody ought to read because they preserve the choicest words. Those who do not read these poems can never know how fine a thing reading is, nor how beautiful our language is at its best.

True poetry is more precious than gold. It makes us good and happy and hopeful, and the words sound like music.

Poetry is grouped into three kinds—Epic, Dramatic and Lyric. Epic poetry is an extended description in grand and noble words of some great event, or of the career of a hero, or of a period in the history of a nation, or of an old royal family.

Dramatic poetry is written in the form of people speaking to each other, and may be acted on the stage, though, to be sure, some dramatic poems are better as poetry than as plays. Lyric poetry sets its name from the fact that it was originally intended to be sung to the playing of the lyre, an ancient form of the harp. All beautiful songs come into lyric poetry.

Points for Parents

Parents deserve commendation fully as much as do children when the relationship between them is such that children are not afraid to tell the truth.

Why Grow Old?

Living dramatically, says Josephine Lowman, always seems to brand a woman as beautiful or charming. Perhaps the little more drama in your life will give you some of the charm Actress Joan Winfield has.

By Josephine Lowman

I often wonder why damsels in distress are always pretty. Have you noticed it? This is true in news items. No matter how old the woman is or where she lives or what she does, if the situation is startling enough, she is "pretty," or "a dashing beauty," "regal look."

ing or "an attractive blond." Whenever a woman is marooned on a mountain top or rescued from drowning she finds herself on the news list.

I often wonder what the homely gals are doing! Surely some of them must get into trouble

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

There are very few mothers who are not of two minds about spanking. They are torn between the desire to make them do better and their emotions help them to administer it.

Mrs. R. L. N. thinks she has an answer. "Maybe other people are like me," she says. "I've spanked my child, having had more than my share. Yet, as a girl, I cared for my children and I feel they needed them. I was always a mother of two."

When my husband was in the service I was in Boston, not my own and I received much advice. I feel that it had to conform in some degree.

We finally settled and I was more than ever rebellious about spanking. I have done it any way. One day my husband, in fun, gave me a seat with a paddle. I had used on the children. I never realized how much it hurt. I doubt if many parents do. From this experience I worked out a plan. If either of us think our child is doing a spanking, either one may administer it under the condition that the other parent then administer a like spanking to the spanking parent. We feel that the spanking would be all right.

"We leave red stripes on their backs," says Mrs. N. "I will think twice of my own. I will be ashamed to admit."

Many spankings would be given under those conditions?

"We feel that the spanking arose because people did not understand a child's need for love, for security."

"If love helps some other mother who is on the fence."

It occurs to me that among the children the parent is considered to be blameworthy when the child acts naughtily.

You are quite right in your contention that the more we know of the motives behind misbehavior the more charitable we are toward it. The present countries of Germany, France and Italy were all plundered by the Huns between 431 and 453 A. D. when they came from Asia under the cruel leader, Attila. The Huns were a mixture of Mongol and Tartar blood, but monstrous. After terrorizing much of Europe, they were finally defeated along the Marne River and Attila killed in 453. They were a cruel people with flat faces. If they had been a people in Europe today, it is probably in the Hungarians, and Bulgarians. The term "Hun" became a symbol of barbarism, and as such was applied to the Germans during the World War of 1914.

Bridge

By William E. McKenney

Jerome Scheuer of Boston is a keen student of contract bridge bidding. He is most insistent upon sound overcalls, and one of his pet theories is that a player should get out of the bidding as quickly as possible when a hand shows all up as a bluff.

Scheuer opened the bidding of today's hand with one club. North, his partner, bid one diamond. East one spade.

"North had there might be a misfit," Scheuer decided against a pass.

holding two hearts, and was agreeably surprised when his partner doubled it, one spade bid. He quite willingly passed again, and was even more than ever surprised when West bid two.

In the play Scheuer and his partner were able to take the first nine tricks but the ace of trumps. He won the opening lead with the ace of clubs and returned the diamond suit with the king. He won the queen. The ace of diamonds was won by Scheuer. A small club came back. North ruffed. Led another diamond. Scheuer ruffed this with the ten of hearts. He led another club. North to ruff.

Scheuer ruffed the diamond return with the king of hearts. He led back his last club. Declarer trumped this with the seven of hearts. Then overruled with the eight, and of course the ace of hearts still had to take a trick.
